The movies The Black Phone and Thor: Love and Thunder are both being released at the same time. According to an article by Vulture, fans will be able to stream Thor: Love and Thunder online through Netflix as soon as it is released in theaters. It was stated that having the movie available on Netflix beforehand has allowed them to give people the option to purchase the movies after release, as well as provide them with the option to stream the movies through Netflix. The article further goes on to say that Netflix has seen an increase in their revenue as a result of streaming movies and television shows online, which is why it is obvious that they have begun streaming movies and television shows prior to their release. This is an elementary school, junior high, high school or an undergraduate college freshman. The TV was only recently introduced to that group of people. These people are all inexperienced with technology and the internet. This is mainly a problem with younger students with barely developed IT skills. They are more likely to drop out of school due to a technical issue with a computer. Most households in the U.S. have at least one laptop or smartphone and probably both. This is where the introduction of online streaming has caused the most damage. The public is given a false sense of security by the fact that websites only require a high quality internet connection and not specifically a video streaming device. This device is often seen as the last hurdle in the connection process which it is not. This allows people to be lazy and not do the basic research to determine which devices are able to stream the video they seek. Also, if a person has multiple devices, it will not be easy to decide which device to use. Since this is a first generation device, it will not be able to view most of the content the public has downloaded. Streaming devices tend to be purchased after the fact to view content. This again is a real reason why there has been an increase in students dropping out.
