
Windows 10 Pro Enterprise Preactivated Multilanguage July 2019 ISO

when you try to upgrade windows 8.1 to windows 10 using the windows store, you will be prompted to choose a language. choose one of the languages you are interested in from the list. after selecting the language you will see a list of different operating systems that you can upgrade to. lets choose windows 10 for now as it is the latest operating system from microsoft. after choosing windows 10 you will be asked to upgrade to the new version or perform a clean installation. choose the option of clean installation because you will be asked to create a new user account and provide a new license key. after choosing the option to upgrade to the new version, you will see a list of different editions of windows 10. choose the one that you want to upgrade to and the size of the iso file. the only other option besides the above option is to perform a clean installation. though this issue was discovered and verified on the july 2019 preview build we are recommending customers to install the latest available cumulative update which includes a fix for this issue. note, visual studio 2019 uses the same licensing model as visual studio 2022. to use visual studio 2019 professional or enterprise editions a valid license will be needed. you dont need logs. open a somewhat large solution, edit some documents then close them, and even the whole solution, you will notice the memory consumption increased. by using windbg, you can see that some wpftextview instances were not released even if all code editor windows have been closed. it seems that the problem has something to do with the automationpeer in wpf. details in my another reply around here.

I have just downloaded and installed Windows 10 Enterprise LTSC on my laptop, and it seems to be working fine. I have verified that I am able to load my Vista games on the Windows 10 Enterprise LTSC, which is awesome. Additionally, I found out that the new Windows 10 Enterprise LTSC build for Win 7 will have the same compatibility as the original build for Win 7. Now for some new information on the Windows 10 Enterprise LTSC, it will be able to run 64 bit Win7 and 64 bit Win10 apps. This seems to be a great win. However, I noticed that on the Windows 10 Enterprise LTSC build, the "Make Windows Updates Automatic" option is grayed out, and I am not able to make it automatic. I am not sure how to get around this, and I don't want to have to update manually. Any help with this would be appreciated.
