Sometimes the Pokémon I want to capture is with an health less than the strength of one of my attacks. For example, I'm almost certain my Charizard has at least one hit point left, but when I attack a Dialga, I don't really notice that at all. Is there any way I can save the critter, or even at least learn the trade for future battles? A: I believe the GTS only accepts creatures that have at least one full health of health after being traded. Therefore if you have a creature in hand with one full health left, you can trade away your creature and hopefully receive a much better one in the form of a GSC. Otherwise if you have a creature with very low health 6d1f23a050
